Magical Ibiza - unrivalled beaches including the famous Playa d'en Bossa!

Playa d'en Bossa: Ibiza's Beach of Contrasts

As the island's longest sandy stretch, Playa d'en Bossa captures the many sides of Ibiza in one place. Along its shoreline, you'll find a lively mix of beach bars and lounges, welcoming everyone from families and laid-back sunbathers to style-conscious travellers and party lovers.

The clear, shallow waters and soft sand make it ideal for swimming, paddling, or a casual game on the beach. When the southern winds roll in, gentle waves add a little extra excitement for those in the sea.

The heart of the action sits between the well-known Jet Apartments and Ushuaïa Ibiza Beach Hotel. This central stretch is full of energy, with daytime pool parties, music, and a steady flow of fashionable beachgoers. It's the perfect place to soak up the buzz and ease into Ibiza's famous nightlife.

Food and drink are easy to come by, with plenty of options lining both the beachfront and the main strip. Whether you're after a relaxed meal with sea views or something more affordable, there's no shortage of choice.

Head further south and the atmosphere softens. The beach opens up, offering more space and a calmer feel, even during the busiest months. Here you'll find upscale beach clubs serving high-quality food and drinks, along with comfortable loungers and attentive service.

At the northern end, things are simpler and more low-key. A small promenade runs alongside a quieter patch of sand, where a handful of reasonably priced beach bars create a relaxed, unpretentious vibe. Facilities are minimal, but that's part of its charm.

This end of the beach also connects to a small harbour, where water taxis run to nearby Figueretas and Ibiza Town. From here, you can also hop on ferries to Formentera or join boat trips and party cruises exploring the coastline.
